Dear Friends and Benefactors,

Our success has really been based on partnerships from the very beginning.

Bill Gates (Entrepreneur, co-founder of Microsoft software enterprise.)

To collaborative team members, completing one another is more important than competing with one another.

John C. Maxwell (Author and motivational speaker focusing on leadership.)

I selected the two quotes above because they speak to the theme of Riverstone's 26th anniversary gala and about its present and its future. Today we celebrate the strength of our community alliances, the hope therein and the ensuing creative results.

Diminishing material resources and increased competition for them, present opportunities for Riverstone and its partners. We recognize that our mutual needs, purposes and shared responsibilities spur us to continue to work together, pooling our resources and expertise, that we may continue to deliver services that support the social-therapeutic-recreational needs of our constituents.

The board and staff of Riverstone, heartily thank the sponsors and contributors of this year's event, many of whom have been long-time friends. And we congratulate the deserving honorees for their leadership, spirit of partnership and commitment to collaboratively work with Riverstone and others to overcome the economic and policy challenges facing delivery of social services to seniors.

Finally, Riverstone's board is grateful for the tireless dedication of Riverstone's executive and program leaders and their staff for enriching the lives of seniors every day.

Sincerely,

Millie Onofrietti
President
